"THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER" is a very creditable affair, and much more attractive than many of its predecessors. The day is clear and cool, and the sky almost cloudless. Perhaps it may rain, but the chances are against such a mishap, and we hope that this watery month, which made its entrance in a wet blanket, and has continued thus muffled during the greater portion of its stay, will take its ing the greater portion of its stay, will take its departure in the full glare of the sunshine. We give below the score made by the thermometer during the mouth, and present the record of August of last year, by way or comparison, as follows:—

THE AMELIA is the name of a little paragon of a vessel which is at present stopping in our waters. Her full length is fifty feet, length of keel forty-three feet, and breadth of beam elever fect. She has a burden of twenty-eight tons, and will carry fifteen hundred feet of canvas under sail. The different portions of the vessel are fitted and fastened to each other by bolts and screws alone, so that she can readily be dislocated and transported overland. The interior of this little craft is a model of taste and luxury. The decorations of the cabin alone cost $12,000, and are probably the most elaborate and elegant that have ever been bestowed upon an apartment of similar size and character. The finishing is in black wainut, relieved by glided scroli work, all executed in Switzerland, with regard to beauty alone. In addition to a handsome melodeon, there are various ingenious devices of a convenient character, which are even mere attractive than useful; and, taken altogether, the cabin of the Amelia is an exquisite piece of workmanship. located and transported overland. The Amelia was constructed by Judah Parker, of Seneca Lake, New York, for Mr. H. B. Platt, a wealthy resident of San Francisco, California. Mr. Piatt is a native of Maine, but emigrated to California soon after the Mexican war and has there amanged a princely fortune. emigrated to California soon after the Mexican war, and has there amassed a princely fortune in the building business. He is now on his way home from Europe, where he has been passing some time with his family. It is his intention to make the homeward voyage around Cape Horn in the Amelia, Yesterday Mr. Platt escorted a party of friends up and down the Delaware in his model craft, stopping at the Fish House and partaking of an elegant entertainment. The Amelia will remain in the Delaware s few days longer. ware a few days longer.

A GANG OF YOUTHFUL THIRVES .- For a long time past the Reading Railroad has suffered considerably from the constant robberies of goods from the various trains, especially near this city, on what is known as the "Flats," By the arrest of some of the parties, the operations of a well-organized and hard-working com-pany of thieves have been brought to light. Yesterday three boys, named John Green, Samuel Wilson, and George McGonigal, were arrested for committing a petty robbery on an evening train. One of them, as is usual in all their operations, got upon the train at its start-ing, and when it neared the "Flats," going slowly, he broke into a car, and threw out a basket containing various articles. This done, he jumped off, and, with his two companious, made for some secret place, there to divide the spoils. In the basket was found a letter con-taining fifty cents; the latter was appropriated, and the letter destroyed. A large amount of cloth, the rest of the contents, was divided; and when McGonigal was arrested at his residence, his mother was transforming part of it into clothing.

Officers Watermier and McLaughlin, of the Ninth District, made the arrests.

This same gang had in contemplation the robbery of a city dry goods store last night, and also a detour to Pottstown for the purpose of blowing open the safe—supposed by them to contain a large amount of money—in the telegraph office in that place.

ALF. BULNETT .- This great humorist and Man of many faces makes his first appearance in our city on Monday evening, at Assembly Buildings. For twelve years he has kept the public of this country laughing wherever he has appeared. His instantaneous changes are indescribable, at the same time so wonderful as to surprise every one. Having made character has study each one he delineates posacter his study, each one he delineates pos-sesses a distinct individuality. He will be assisted by Miss Helen Nash, who recites, during the evening, several poetic gems. For a night of genuineamusement, judging from our exchanges, nothing yet given can equal Burnett's entertainments

ALL ABOUT A CAP .- The offense for which Mr. Flank Doyle was bound over by Alderman Toland, on Thursday aftergoon, to answer the charge of larceny and assault, consisted in his knocking overboard the cap of a fellow passenger on a Vine street ferry-boat. The party were returning from an excursion to Atlantic City, and several bats and caps thus met a watery fate during a little squabble on the boat. Mr. Doyle has paid for the cap, and the charge against him has been withdrawn.

A PICKPOCKET CAUGHT .- Michael Cooley, a periect son of "ould Erin," was arrested this morning by the detectives for picking a gentleman's pocket of a watch. Mr. Henry J. Hansels and some friends were returning from the sels and some friends were returning from the base-ball match yesterday afternoon, and after entering the ferry-house were surrounded by a crowd who pushed and swayed, while one of their party—"Mickey," the above-mentioned— extracted the watch from Mr. Hansels' pocket. He will have a hearing this afternoon at 2 o'clock, before Alderman Beitler.

INTERESTING SUNDAY-SCHOOL MEETING .- A Interesting Sunday-School. Meeting.—A meeting of great interest will take place tomorrow afternoon, in Bethune Hall, at the corner of Twelfth street an I Montgomery avenue, when addresses will be made by A. M. Spangler, H. H. Shillingford, Mr. Allen, and Rev. P.
Stryker Talmage, the clergyman in charge.
During the afternoon the scholars will sing several anthems. This enterprise is under the auspices of the Reformed Dutch Charch, and is in a flourishing condition. in a flourishing condition.

OBITUARY .- We announce with regret the decease of a gentleman who has ever been held in high esteem as a citizen and in all business circles. Mr. Charles Iewell departed this life after a short illness. He has held for three successive terms the office of Receiver of Taxes, and resigned during his last to enter upon his duties as First Teller of the National Exchange Bank. By his death this institution loses a valued officer.

THE FIEST DAY OF FALL.—Not, we hope, of our nation's progress or our individual fortunes, but of the calendar year. A fall in prices of Ready made Clothing, at Charles Stokes & Co.'s First Class House, under the Continental, would be inaugurated if the prices were not siresdy at the lowest for the style of goods. Any one doubting is invited to call and see the garments and prices, at No. 824 Chesnut street.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.

Grant and the Southern Commanders.

Removed Civil Officers Not to be Reinstated.

[SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO EVENING TRIBORAPH.] WASHINGTON, August 31-P. M.

General Grant has just issued the following SPECIAL ORDERS NO. 429.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY, August 33, 1867.—Commanders of the Military Districts created under the act of March 2, 1867, will make no appointments to civil office of persons who have been removed by themselves or their pre-decessors in command.

By command of General U. S. Grant.

E. D. Townsenn,

Assistant Adjutant-General.

The Removal of General Sickles. The grounds given for the removal of General Sickles were that he suffered his guthority to come into collision with the Judicial department of the Government. The action of the President was founded upon a report from the Attorney General's office of the 24th instant, submitting the matter in all its bearings, which report will be published on Monday. Assignment.

Brevet Brigadier-General Tompins, Deputy Quartermaster, formerly Deputy Quarter-master Department of Washington, has been assigned to duty as Chief Quartermaster of the Fifth Military District.

Interest on Ten-Forties Due. The interest on the Ten-Forty bonds, payable semi-annually, fails due on September i. About $95,000,000 in coin will be required to pay the

The Fifth District. General Steedman and Collector Kellogg still remain here. It is reported to-day that one object of their visit is to urge the President to direct Hancock to reinstate Governor Wells, as one of his first acts after he assumes command of the Fifth District. A powerful pressure is already being exerted from New Orleans to secure this result.

The friends of Wells argue that the levee bonds amounting to four millions of dollars.

The friends of Wells argue that the levee bonds, amounting to four millions of dollars are not valid, if signed by Governor Flanders, Sheridan's appointee, and they say they should be signed by Governor Wells to insure their legality. It is understood that some of Wells' friends have negotiated the sale of the entire four millions in New York city, at sixty cents on the dollar, conditioned that they are signed by Wells.

by Wells.
The President will probably yield to this influence, and one of the first acts Hanceck will be directed to perform will be to reinstate Wells by direct order and request from the President. But Flanders cannot be removed without Grant's approval, and this is not likely to be given under the circumstances.

Personal. Hon, Samuel J. Randall, Charles W. Carrigan, General William McCandless, and other Demo-crats from Philadelphia, are here, all, of course, on private business. The presence of these parties here indicates that something relative to Pennsylvania politics is in progress.

Senator Cameron arrived this morning, and had a protracted interview with General Grant. Assistant Secretary of Treasury Chandler arrived this morning, much improved in health from his late trip.

[From A. M. Spangler, Editor of he Culturist, No. 2 North Sixth Street.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 15, 1865, Some eighteen months since, I was a severe sufferer from dyspepsia. I was not only unable to take plain food without suffering great distress, but had become so debilitated as to be almost unfitted for active business.

so debilitated as to be aimost unfitted for active business of any kind.

After trying a variety of so-called remedies, all of which proved worthless, I was induced, at the suggestion of a medical friend, to give Hoofland's German Bitters a trial. I accordingly purchased six bottles, which were taken in accordance with your directions.

The result was a complete removal of all distressing symptoms after eating or drinking, and a full restoration of strength, so that I now eat all ordinary kinds of food with impunity, and am able to attend to all the active duties of a large and arduous business see well as at any period of my life: the good effects of the Bitters were manifested before I had taken the first bottle.

I have also used it in my family with the happies results, and take great pleasure in adding my less mony to that of the many others who have been benefited by it. I find great benefit from the use of a bottle in the spring and fall. They not only create a vigorous appetite, but give a healthy tone to the stomach by strengthening its directive powers.

If the above test mony will be the means of inducing any who suffer from Lyspepsia to give your Bitters a trial (when it. I feel confident, will give them relief) it is at your service.

MAGNIFICENT DISPLAYS OF THE "MANLY ART"

Status of the Men at the "Finish."

AARON JONES BADLY HURT.

Three of His Ribs Broken.

Special Telegrams to the Evening Telegraph.

[Fifth Despatch.]

COLORS OF THE MEN. CINCINNATI, August 31,-Jones' colors were purple. McCoole's colors were a green ground, with a border of red, white, and blue, and gold, and an embroidered harp of Erin in the centre.

THE PRELIMINARIES. McCoole slept last night at Middletown about seven miles from the battle field. The only puglistic celebrity of the first water upon the ground is Barney Aaron, with the exception of the seconds of the men. The fighting ring of the men was pitched upon a piece of turi which was flat, but the sward was rather loose and there were several clumes which loose, and there were several clumps which were cut down as evenly as possible. It was completed, after considerable delay, at 9 A. M., and at twenty-six minutes past ten the men appeared in the ring attended by their seconds. Jones put in the first appearance and was greeted with loud cheers.

McCoole followed him directly, and met with a similar flattering reception. Jack Cooney, of Cincinnati, was chosen umpire for Jones, and Dad Ryan for McCoole. By mutual consent of the umpires, "Pap King," of New Orleans, was appointed referee, and Dick McCullough was chosen timekeeper. The bets round the ring, just before the fight, were two to one on Jones' getting first blood: even on first kneek down.

getting first blood; even on first knock down, and even on the fight.

Jones won the choice of corners, and came into the ring with his mug beaming with a pleasant and self-confident smile. McCoole also appeared perfectly self-confident, and seemed a great favorite with a large portion of the crowd. The men immediately betook them-selves to their respective corners, when Jones took out a big roll of greenbacks, and offered to stake them on the result of the mill.

THE BETTING. I have never witnessed a prize-fight of this class where betting was so slow. CONTRAST BETWEEN THE MEN.

The men stripped, and there was a marked difference between the big-boned, hairy com-plexion of McCool, and fair but muscular skin THE FIGHT. First Round—Sparring commenced, Jones in the finest attitude. McCoole struck Jones with bore Aaron down. Twenty-eighth—Cautious sparring. McCoole again bore Aaron down. Twenty-ninth—McCoole forced the fighting and bore Aaron to the ropes and struck Aaron a nasty one on the body which floored him out-side of the ring. Thirtieth—Aaron fell outside of the ring in getting out of the way of McCoole's right.

Thirty-first—Cautious sparring. Jones got a nasty uppercut, was borne to the ropes and ell. Thirty-second—Mike got it on the forehead from Aaron's left, and returned upon the body when Asron fell.

Thirty-third.—Aaron planted his right heavily on McCoole's side, and fell.

Thirty-fourth—McCoole forced the fighting, and Jones received a terrific right hander on the conk, and fell, and was carried to his corner. Jones failed to come to time, and lost The two men were entirely unmatched, Jones being an infant in McCoole's hands. McCoole forced the fighting all along, and Jones practised caution, and endeavored to close up his peepers. It was evident from the first that if McCoole got his right well home that the fight

WAS OVER. Jones has seen his best days, and it is probable that he will not again appear in the ring. The fact that McCoole drew first blood on the first round was omitted in our report of the rounds. McCoole is comparatively uninjured, with the exception of his left eye.

Jones is much damaged. Both eyes are closed, and, rumor says, three ribs broken. Latest Markets by Telegraph.

FOREIGN TROOPS IN NEW YORK.

This morning there leaves New York by the Quaker City for Brest, France, a portion of the late Emperor of Moxico's (Maximilian's), bodyguard, which arrived on Thursday from Vera Cruz on the French men-of-war Phiegeton and Bouret. Along with this guard, which numbers about 140, there were fitty or sixty civilians belonging to the corps diplomatique. These soldiers formed the celebrated Foreign Legion that did so much execution among the Maxima soldiers formed the celebrated Foreign Legion that did so much execution among the Mexican guerillas, and which fought faithfully and heroically beside their ili-starred Imperial master until his tragical late at Querelaro. It was composed of contingents of volunteers from France, Austria, Beigium, and Prussia, and formed a complete army in itself, embracing all the branches of the services from engineer to cavalry, and as they formed a picture-que group around the office of the French Consulat Bowling Green, one would almost fancy he was in a little garrison town in Mexico. Consplauous among them were the Hussars de l'Empereur, dressed in what once was a brilliant dashing uniform of a light red, the jackets of the officers were richly braided with gold lace, and the long boots of untanned leather were surmounted by a tight fitting trowers. The Gens d'Armes were dressed in a much more serviceable and less gaudy unileather were surmounted by a tight fitting trowers. The Gens d'Armes were dressed in a much more serviceable and less gaudy uniform, composed of a dark blue blouse, a loose patelot with light blue facings, and a small klepl of dark blue. Another corps, called the Contra Guerilins, were dressed precisely similar to the Gens d'Armes, with the exception of the klepl, which was of a light blue with dark cords. This sorps was especially detailed to hunt down the guerillas that infested the vicinity of the City of Mexico. As most of these men had been prisoners among the Mexicans, they were treated with true Mexican magnanimity, which consisted in stripping them nearly naked, and permitting them to live in luxurious poverty on twenty-five cents a day, which would hardly purchase a single meal in any restaurant. In addition, they were subjected to the courteous remarks of their foreign hireting gnards, who only wanted the most trifling excuse to despatch the "foreign hounds," as their prisoners were lovingly termed. In consequence of this raid on their wardrobes, their uniforms were hardly in that condition to honor a dress parade at West Point; and to add a more curious effect to this motley group, the Mexican civilians were attired in huge sombreros, of every shape and patter; some of fine felt, trimmed with gold lase, and others of coarse whisp straw; the huge brims were so disproportionate to the crowns as to resemble a plank road round a bundle of hay; and the dark sunburnt faces beneath, with the keen, haggard look that a residence in a tropical climate usually gives, heightened the effect of this appearance. Some of the less fortunate, and among these was a huge Algerian soldier that had been in the French army, who was attired in a horse-blanket with a hole in the centre, through which he put his head and allows the ends of in the French army, who was attired in a horse-blanket with a hole in the centre, through which he put his head and allows the ends of this improvised mantle to hang in graceful folds around his otherwise curiously attired person, and though he was rather picturesque, one could hardly compare him to a haughty cavalier of Charles the Second's time; then, as if to heighten the motley appearance of this curiosity in elething he were a rair of short part. heighten the mottey appearance of this curiosity in clothing, he wore a pair of short pants that hardly reached to his knees, and being minus shoes or stockings, resembled nothing under the sun so much as a burly Dutchman at Coney Island in bathing costume. Notwithstanding these little disagremens, so disgusting to the tollet-loving Frenchman, they enjoyed the ludderous effect as much as the graphs. to the toilet-loving Frenchman, they enjoyed the ludicrous effect as much as the gaping crowd, who stared at these newcomers in mute amazement. But, vive la bagatelle, they had truly lost all but honor, and as most of them were dashing, sprightly young men, they cared little for the toils of the past, and were as light-hearted as a crowd of bounding school boys, and Parislan persifiage was bandled round in great good humor, considering they were returning to in Belle France, from which they had been separated for five years. A good number have consented to remain in this country, especially the discharged soldiers from the French army that had taken service under Maximilian. Many a French freside this coming winter will be entertained with exciting tales commencing, "Quand Jetais dans la Mexique," etc.—N. Y. World.
